ALLIED PUSH NEARS ROME RAIL LINE

Invaders 12 Miles Inland

Moving Up to Battle Zone—Heavy streams of traffic proceed in both directions across the bridge built by American engineers over the Volturno river in Italy to replace the one (lower left) destroyed by the Germans. The traffic moving north is headed for the Fifth Army front which today is ablaze in battles resulting from the movement of some 100,000 Nazi troops into that sector.

Allies Gain 12 Miles, Cover Appian Way

By EDWARD KENNEDY

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Algiers, Jan. 25 (AP)—Allied troops have driven 12 miles inland from their Nettuno-Anzio beachhead, and patrols are pushing deeper, with no "formidable" German opposition yet encountered, headquarters announced today.

The famous Appian Way to Rome and the main coastal rail line are about 12 miles inland from the landing area, but it was not specifically stated the invasion forces had reached them. It is obvious, however, that they are at least under Allied domination.

(James L. Kilgallin, writing for International News Service, said the Allied invaders had "straddled" the Appian way and rail line. Algiers United Nations radio said the troops were within a mile of the railroad, a double-tracked electric line from Rome to Naples.)

(International News Service quoted a Stockholm dispatch which said Allied parachutists were active in the Rome area and aided by Italian Partisans had breached three important bridges.)

GERMANS PULLED BACK

The Nazis still were making fierce counterattack on the Cassino front, but these blows have decreased somewhat in number and intensity in 24 hours, indicating enemy forces were being pulled back to meet the invasion flanking threat.

The beachhead has been lengthened, headquarters declared, without disclosing the area it covers. Reinforcements and supplies continued to pour in with little enemy interference, and the communique said the town of Anzio, bordering Nettuno to the west, had been taken.

Reynolds Packard, correspondent representing the combined American press with the invasion force, said the onnly opposition encountered so far was a small amount of shelling.

At the beaches he visited he said he found stacks of mines with wooden instead of metal cases, indicating the Germans had put minimum defenses in this area.

GERMANS LED ASTRAY

Italians with whom Packard talked said there had been rumors during the past fortnight that the Fifth Army would make amphibious landings in the areas near Pisa and Leghorn and that, therefore, the Germans withdrew many of their reserves from this sector.

Meantime, fierce fighting raged on the American sector along the Rapido river near Cassino with heavy fire by all kinds of weapons. U. S. patrols recrossed the stream to probe enemy defenses, but no counter offensive was launched by the Americans to keep a force on the western bank.

Bulletins

LONDON, Jan. 25 (INS)—Allied invasion forces have reached the Lepini Mountains, 19 miles inland from the Nettuno beachhead, according to a Bari radio report.

LONDON, Jan. 25 (INS)—The Germans are recovering from the surprise of Allied landings south of Rome and are massing for a counter-attack, Vaughn Thomas, a correspondent for the combined British press, reported today.

Coast Guard Boat Explodes

NEW YORK, Jan. 25 (AP)—A Coast Guard patrol boat exploded after a fire a quarter of a mile off Princes Bay, Staten Island, today, but the Third Naval District said Coast Guard fireboats and ther patrol vessels removed the crew before the explosion. The vessel finally was beached.

Nazis Take Port From Tito Force

LONDON, Jan. 25 (AP)—German troops have occupied the Croat coastal town of Senj, 35 miles southeast of Fiume, after fierce fighting in which Yugoslav Partisans forced the invaders to pay heavily in men and equipment, Marshal Tito announced today.

Map Tells Story of Fighting In Italy

ITALY—Allied forces from the Cassino area to Minturno today were battling seven divisions of Germans (1) rushed into that area from the north. Meanwhile, the Allies who landed south of Rome are reported driving inland from captured (2) Nettuno toward (3) the Appian Way in the face of attacks by small German tank, artillery and infantry forces. Also (4), Littoria was reported captured by the Allies.

Reds Rip Nazis With Rail Guns

MOSCOW, Jan. 25 (AP)—With armored trains, Soviet armies of the Leningrad front pushed the Germans down the Leningrad-Vitebsk railway today as the Nazis fought frantically to avoid great encirclements from the sector south of captured Pushkin (Tsarkoye Selo) to positions in the area of Shimsk at the western corner of Lake Ilmen.

The big Russian railroad guns are pouring salvos into the retreating Nazis.

It appeared the Germans were faced with one of their worst catastrophes of the Russian campaign, with large forces in divisional strength desperately fighting off outflanking movements, which threatened to cut off an estimated 250,000 troops between Leningrad and the Volkhov.

The Germans hold only two usable north-south railways, the Leningrad-Vitebsk and the Leningrad-Pskov lines. The Russians are within five miles of the first line. The second is 10 miles farther west.

The big Pushkin airport is in Soviet hands.

The total of captured 305-millimeter guns has risen to 150—the bulk of the German big guns which shelled Leningrad for two years.

Stormovik bombers are continuing to do great damage to the retreating columns.

Dispatches indicated increasing disorganization and panic among the German forces.

The government newspaper Izvestia declared the Germans leaving Pushkin burned Catherine's Palace, after removing all its priceless furniture to Germany.

LONDON, Jan. 25 (AP)—The German high command communique said today the Russians had pierced German lines at one point northwest of Kirovograd, had renewed their onslaughts between the Pripet and Berezina rivers and had stepped up their pressure at Kerch.

Another Berlin broadcast said fighting was taking place within the town of Kerch.

French Coast Pounded Again

LONDON, Jan. 25 (AP)—Thundering out across the English Channel for the third successive day, strong formations of Allied bombers hammered the French coast from Dunkerque to Boulogne today as fine flying weather succeeded a windy and turbulent night.

Observers on the English coast reported large groups of both bombers and fighters launched the new assaults shortly after dawn.

Twenty-one German planes were destroyed yesterday in aerial battles which developed when escorted U. S. Flying Fortresses and Liberators braved bad weather to blast unspecified objectives in western Germany, a communique announced.

The communique said two heavy bombers, one fighter-bomber and 10 fighters were missing

ARGENTINE BREAK WITH AXIS NEAR?

By KINGSBURY SMITH

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25 (INS)—It was learned today Argentina has indicated her intention to sever diplomatic relations with the Axis.

Such action would represent one of the most important Allied diplomatic victories of the war, since Argentina is the only country in the Western Hemisphere still friendly with the Axis.

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay, Jan. 25 (AP)—Diplomats here said a sensational announcement is expected to be made today in Buenos Aires—with a strong possibility it would be a formal declaration by Argentina breaking relations with the Axis countries.

LONDON, Jan. 25 (AP)—Britain joined the United States today in refusing to recognize the new government of Bolivia. Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden told Commons he believed the coup in that country had been aided by German agents.

350-Plane Smash Slaps Rabaul Japs

ADVANCED ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, New Guinea, Jan. 25 (AP)—Fighting desperately to halt Allied air blows at her Southwest Pacific air and sea bases, Japan is paying a steep price—more than 350 planes in 30 days over Rabaul alone—yet has failed to stop the devastating daily parade of bombers.

The enemy's Rabaul, New Britain, losses from Dec. 23 to Jan. 24 totaled 349 definite, plus many others probably downed, a South Pacific headquarters spokesman said today. The Allies lost only 79. (In the calendar month of December, Japan lost 486 planes to our 68 in the entire Pacific.)

In two big raids alone, on Japanese bases at Wewak, New Guinea, and Rabaul New Britain, the past week-end, the enemy lost 51 planes for certain and probably 14 others, Gen. Douglas MacArthur's communique said today.

Forty to 70 interceptors tried vainly to block the Allied blow at Rabaul's Lakunai airdrome Saturday. The 27 Mitchells scored 54 hits and left fires visible for 20 miles.

Mitchells, aided by heavy Liberators, returned to the attack Saturday night and left flames that were seen 75 miles away. Eleven separate fires were counted and three large explosions observed. Two Liberators were lost.

Uniform Clue to Missing Fiance

Capt. Philip W. Bateman, who vanished here Saturday two hours before he was to have wed Miss Helen M. Olson, 24, of Newburyport, was last seen dressed in a uniform which would have caused him to be challenged by military police if he had attempted to travel very far, the Army disclosed.

He wore a fatigue cap and was otherwise uniformed for work, contrary to Army regulations governing travel by officers, it was learned.

His heart-broken fiancee revealed, however, that he had spoken to her of taking a uniform to a Boston tailor for alteration. She still has at her home, a new uniform in which he had intended to be married.

The 27-year-old captain had telephoned her from Boston

Helen Olson

shortly after noon, Jan. 22. He had gone to the Ritz-Carlton Hotel to buy a bridal bouquet and corsages. She said he told her he was taking the 12:30 train for Newburyport. His movements since making the call have not been traced.

Capt. Beatman, who had been given 10 days' leave from his post at Salisbury, was a victim of foul play or suffered a memory lapse, Miss Olson believes. At Salisbury and at Fort Ruckman, Nahant, where he had served previously, he was known as level-headed and conscientious.

She tearfully addressed him directly in a broadcast appeal: "I'm waiting for you, Phil. I shall be waiting for you always. I hope you are not ill or in trouble, but whatever happened to you, do not be afraid to come back to me. That is all I am living for now."

At her request, authorities are checking camps in the Adirondacks, where he spent vacations; a Binghamton, N. Y., farm owned by his grandmother and a camp at Mountain Lake, N. J.

Millionaire Tells Of Friendship For Girl Suicide

NEW YORK, Jan. 25 (INS)—Albert R. Roberts, Canadian millionaire, told police today he had been a friend for more than a year of Beryle Blake, 35, who committed suicide Sunday.

At the time of her suicide, police credited the act to love of a married man since reconciled with his wife.

Roberts told police he could give no reason for Miss Blake's act.

Miss Blake left three notes in her apartment, one to Roberts, a second to a friend, Mrs. Paul C. Boyd, and the third to the building superintendent asking that the millionaire be notified.

Friends say she had told them she was to wed Roberts when his wife divorced him.

Saturday night, according to friends, she telephoned her doctor, and he placed her under the care of three nurses. Sunday morning, she dismissed the nurses, and turned on the gas.

Beryle was an executive of a cosmetics company in Jersey City, where for a year she had been in charge of styling cosmetics.

Own Medicine

DES MOINES, Jan. 25 (AP)—R. E. Walters, Office of Price Administration director for the district, recently became worried over the number of ration books being lost by housewives and motorists.

He ordered duplicates be issued only after a 30-day waiting period.

Old Jobs Lure AEF Fighters

By AUSTEN LAKE

SOMEWHERE IN ENGLAND (by transport plane)—These men in U. S. mustard-brown feel that they hold a promisory note on the prosperity of America. They expect to cash it at some future time in the form of useful jobs at a living wage. They are not, as a body, men who attempt to analyze the mysteries of national economy or fluid wealth. All they know is that they left jobs or school when they were on the threshold of productive life, and they want it all back—or something better. And they have a blind, almost credulous faith that it will be waiting.

As Pvt. Joe F. Pesce (Paysh) of 10 Tileston st., Everett, told me today at a hillside tank park: "I'm gonna be very sick of being bossed around. I want a job where I boss myself when the war ends." And, like most of his calloused fellows, Joe knows what he wants. He plans to take a course in electronics at Wentworth Institute "with my bonus money."

Joe doesn't brood over problems of trade unionism, or industrial competition, or rationed materials. He and his mates see the America of free enterprise and plenty that they left. They see their country against the standard of European scarcity. So Corp. Edmund F. Welch of 203 Ferry st., Lawrence, a company cook for a medical unit, dreams of having his neighborhood lunch wagon with an oaken counter, a battery of gas stoves and a larder full of red meats.

Not one of these boys—and I have talked with hundreds—regards the U. S. as a community Christmas tree loaded with free gifts. They ask for work—an honest job of their own choosing. Pfc. Edwin A. Lassas of 9 Havana rd., Worcester, doesn't want to go back to work with a metal company. His experience with curative drugs in an ambulance unit steers him toward the study of pharmacy and a drugstore of his own.

Pvt. Vincent DiSalvatore of 57 Temple st., Haverhill, is not content to go back to a big shoe factory and plans a one-man plant of his own, where he can make 12 pairs of lady's sandals a day.

AEF Pay-Day Is Bond-Buying Time, Says Lake

New England's Berlin-bound fighting men, training tirelessly in England, set a fine example for the home folks by buying war bonds every pay-day, writes Austen Lake, Boston American war correspondent, in Wednesday's instalment of his brilliant series.

"Ninety per cent of the soldiers either send their money home or buy war bonds," declares Lake, as he tells of watching that great event of Army life—pay day.

Wednesday's chapter in the Boston American brings messages by boys from Malden, Middleboro, Little Forge, Manchester, Lowell, Auburn, Maynard, Back Bay, Roxbury, Dorchester, Rockland, New Bedford, Fall River, Salem, Jamaica Plain, Dedham, Medford, Lawrence, Framingham, Braintree, Plymouth, and other New England communities.

Mummied Baby Found in Trunk

NEW YORK, Jan. 25 (AP)—Police, making a routine investigation into the death of Miss Jennie Venaccio, 44, were confronted with a mystery when they found the mummified body of an infant in a trunk in another room of her home.

Dr. Henry Weinberg, assistant medical examiner, said it was possible that the baby had been dead six or seven years.

Legion Blasts Dual Economy Aimed at Vets

By FRANK REILLY
Boston American Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25—America's fighting men today were the goats in a double administration maneuver to "save" money at the expense of veterans.

The first blow struck by administration forces in Congress came in the niggardly $300 mustering-out pay measure reported out by a Senate-House conference committee and now under discussion on the floor of the House.

Not only did such enemies of discharged and disabled veterans as Rep. Andrew J. May succeed in voting down the Senate plan to grant discharge pay up to $500, but they actually managed to slash their own paltry $300 measure to the extent of $1,000,000,000.

LEGION BILL THROWN OUT

The second blow against service men and women was a stab in the back, through a technicality, of the American Legion's "bill of rights for G-I Joe and G-I Jane." By a legislative trick, the Legion bill has been thrown out.

American Legion officials showed open resentment over this act. Francis M. Sullivan, executive director of the Legion's national legislative committee, declared:

"The question now is whether or not the American service man is going to be the goat while we spend billions on people throughout the world. We seem to have a new economy wave directed exclusively against the veterans."

Declared Sen. C. Wayland Brooks of Illinois:

"The only economy that this administration has ever really practiced has been at the expense of the veterans. It appears that we are following that pattern now."

Rep. John E. Rankin of Mississippi, who saw his veterans' omnibus bill—a plan for placing all beneficiary legislation in the hands of his World War Veterans' Committee—ruled out on a technicality of House regulations, registered red hot protest.

"I think the entire treatment the veteran is receiving is an outrage," he said. "It is unthinkable to cut the House mustering-out pay bill. It is outrageous to rule out my resolution on a technicality.

PROTESTS WAIVERS

"Thousands of boys are still being required to sign 'waivers' of their rights under the disability compensation laws. That is an unspeakable abuse of their rights," Rankin said.

He explained that even though the 'waivers' have no legal force, discharged soldiers are led to think they have abandoned their rights by signing the waivers. For this reason they do not put in applications for compensation rightfully theirs.

VET WAIVERS IGNORED BY U. S. BUREAU

By JAMES F. McENANEY

Though Army and Navy officials are allegedly forcing sick and disabled servicemen to sign waivers of claims as a condition of discharge it was learned today that the Veterans Administration is ignoring and will continue to ignore such waivers.

Officials of the Veterans Administration, as well as officials and liaison officers of the American Legion and the Disabled American Veterans of the World War, all declared that claims for compensation are being based strictly on a veeran's medical record while in uniform.

At the same time it was learned that some servicemen have even been threatened with court martial when they refused to sign waivers of claims that disabilities suffered with service—connected or aggravated.

SIGNED AFTER THREAT

One such case is that of a 21-year-old Dorchester former sailor who served 14 months in the Navy, much of it in the South Pacific, and whose discharge read "psychoneurosis," though he was disabled because of a hernia.

This youth protested but nevertheless was ordered to sign a waiver of claim. When he refused he was threatened with court martial on a cahrge of "refusing to obey the orders of a superior officer." So, under such threat, he signed the waievr and was discharged as a mental case—according to his paper.

"These waivers are not worth the paper they're written on," the Boston American was told today by Michael Curley, American Legion liaison officer at the Boston Veterans Bureau.

WINS COMPENSATION

"Any veteran who shows disability, service-connected, whether or not he signed a waiver, will be entitled to have his claim for compensation adjudicated. The waiver in no way is a barrier."

Curley cited the case of a Milton youth of 22 years, discharged from the Navy after 15 months' service, including action in the South Pacific.

He incurred a disability, was marked unfit for duty and was sent back to a naval hospital in the States. There he was instructed to sign a waiver if he wished to obtain his discharge, and he did so about four months ago.

After he was out he told his story to the Legion and his case was taken to the veterans' administration. It was adjudicated, despite the waiver, and he is now receiving compensation.

T. J. Gallagher, liason officer of the disabled veterans at the local Veterans Bureau, declared that men with whom he has talked at Chelsea Naval Hospital have said they were threatened with being returned to active duty, despite their disabilities, unless they signed waivers of claims.

'Murder, Inc.' Hearing

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 25 (AP)—A clemency hearing Feb. 2 for Louis (Lepke) Buchalter, one-time boss of "Murder, Inc.," now awaiting electrocution in Sing Sing prison, was announced today by Gov. Dewey.

Legion Opens New Probe of Dodgers

Indignant Legion officials and civilian leaders today clamored for a swift cleanup of the situation whereby men being sent to prison for defying the nation's draft laws are being paroled by federal authorities and given work in hospitals and institutions throughout the country.

Revealed by investigation of local Legion heads, it was likewise reliably reported that some of the draft defiers are being permitted to obtain an education while working, with more than a score of them working in Greater Boston Hospitals after serving only parts of their sentences.

The investigation came about as the result of a protest by the superintendent of a local hospital that over his objection one of these men was given permission by a federal official to leave his institution, because he wanted another job.

State Comdr. John L. Delay of the American Legion and Adjt. Coleman C. Curran of the State Department American Legion, made a thorough inquiry into the case and later it was reported to Senators David I. Walsh and Henry Cabot Lodge.

GILL DEFENDS MOVE

Curran witheld the identity of the young man, but in Washington it was disclosed by Howard B. Gill, technical assistant to the director of the bureau of prisons of the Department of Justice, as Thomas C. Hall. The youth is also a pre-medical student at Harvard University.

Gill admitted that he had ordered the transfer of Hall, a parolee, to another institution over the protests of the hospital superintendent.

Hall was allowed to quit the job and is now waiting until federal parole authorities find him another job.

"We had to see the total situation," explained Gill. "The parolee is doing a good job and anything we can do to help him we will be glad to do."

MANY SENT HERE

Hall is only one of more than a score of parolees who were sent here to work at the pay of an Army private, about $50 a month. But in addition these parolees get free living quarters and meals.

Hall, 21, quit Harvard in February, 1942, when he was a sophomore, saying he felt that in paying board and tuition he was giving money and support to an institution which had many investments in the war effort. He returned to his home in New York, where his father is a building superintendent.

A conscientious objector, he refused to register on the ground he is morally opposed to war.

Later he was sentenced to two years in prison for refusing to register under the Selective Service Act. He served a little over a year in Ashland, Ky., prison, then was paroled and sent to work at the local hospital.

MacDonald Hit By Civic League

Calling for a new public works commissioner who has "exceptional training and broad experience" to handle the construction program of the postwar period, the Massachusetts Civic League today asked Gov. Saltonstall not to reappoint Herman A. MacDonald to that post.

MacDonald's term expires Jan. 31. The league's opposition to his continuance in office was expressed in a letter to the governor, signed by Sydney M. Williams, league president.

SEN. VAN NUYS OF INDIANA DIES AT 69

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25 (AP)—Sen. Frederick Van Nuys, 69, chairman of the judiciary committee, died today at his home near Vienna, Va., after a brief illness.

He had served in the Senate since March 4, 1933, taking an active part in legislative affairs and leading Democratic opposition to some New Deal metsures.

Sen. Van Nuys

Last fall the Indianian started an investigation of the liquor industry, introducing a resolution calling for a probe into the shortage of whisky and alleged monopoly of supply. His committee had scheduled a hearing in this investigation for today.

In addition to the judiciary chairmanship, Van Nuys also was a member of the Senate committee on foreign relations, Indian affairs, and executive expenditures.

Frequently at odds with the Administration Van Nuys fought President Roosevelt's court reorganization plan in 1937 and was aligned against the Administration on many other issues.

However, he was a staunch supporter of President Roosevelt's policies even in the controversial period before the war.

Van Nuys was the Senate sponsor for the controversial anti-lynching bill, which still is pending before the judiciary committee.

His death reduced the Democratic-held seats in the Senate to 57, with the Republicans holding 37 and the Progressive party one.

However, Indiana's Democratic governor, Henry F. Schricker, doubtlessly will appoint a Democrat to serve out the year remaining of Van Nuy's term. Schricker himself has been mentioned for the Democratic nomination to succeed Van Nuys.

Former All-American halfback, Lieut. Tommy Harmon, is back in the U. S. after two escapes from death, once when his plane crashed in the French Guinea jungles, and again when he was forced down in China. On both occasions the flyer was lost but worked his way back to civilization. Now, he is going home for a 20-day leave before rejoining his fighter squadron in China.

Tries to Die in Battle As Wife Begs Divorce

"My wife's letters urging me to get a divorce upset me so that I deliberately went out beyond our lines and tried to get killed. Shells fell all around me and hundreds were being killed but nothing seemed to hit me. All the time her letters were like somebody hitting and pounding me when I couldn't hit back."

That dramatic story was told in Suffolk Probate Court today by Chief Petty Officer Jordan Orr, Coast Guard veteran of the Solomon Islands invasion, as he sought an uncontested divorce from Helen Orr of West Bridgewater, charging cruelty and abuse.

The courtroom was hushed as Judge Frederick J. Dillon and spectators listened intently to the serviceman's dramatic story.

WIFE LOVES HIS RIVAL

"Pearl Harbor changed my plans for getting things straightened out," Orr testified. "I was sent from Norfolk, Va., to the South Pacific and I was kept busy building bases to drive the Japs back.

"I didn't hear from my wife for a long time but I kept sending her money and letters. While I was in New Zealand, waiting for the big push on the Solomons, I got her first letter. It read:

"'You have been a fine and most generous husband to me. It is not your fault but I am in love with Arnie. I am with him every night and we have a wonderful time.'"

He faltered momentarily and then commented wryly:

"That was a wonderful thing to have on my mind as we started the Solomons invasion two weeks later."

Orr said he was sent back to New Caledonia for supplies after the successful assault on the Solomons and while there he received more letters from his wife, one asking him to return home and get a divorce.

TRIED TO KILL SELF

After telling of his efforts to get himself killed by Jap bullets, he testified: "I tried to shoot myself but I didn't have enough courage."

He said he was stationed in Wellfleet in 1940 when he first heard that his wife was having an affair with another man. He testified he went with her to his rival's home and there, before the other man's wife, Mrs. Orr admitted "being amorous" with the rival.

"When I was transferred to Norfolk later, I got my wife to go down there with me, thinking she would forget all about the other man," Orr said.

DELAYS ABOUT CHILDREN

Orr said the "Arnie" mentioned in his wife's upsetting letter was a brother-in-law of his earlier rival. He said the new rival is also in the Coast Guard and that his wife intends to marry him after her divorce.

Telling Judge Dillon he was willing his two children, Margaret, 3 and William, 9, should be given to his wife, Orr said he understood she planned to adopt them and give them her prospective second husband's name.

"Don't let your emotions run away with you by giving away your children," Judge Dillon advised.

"Think it over, think of the future when your boy will be older. Don't you want him to know you as his father?"

Orr agreed to delay decision on custody of the children. The Orrs were married in 1934.

The divorce was granted.

OIL COUPON FLOOD DUE TO SALVAGE SLIP

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25 (AP)—A salvage company's paper-shredding machine which apparently failed to shred has put ration coupons worth 15,000,000 gallons of fuel oil and 5,000,000 gallons of gasoline into illicit circulation on the Eastern Seaboard, the Office of Price Administration disclosed today.

OPA said four persons were in custody and others were being sought.

One of those in custody was described as an employe of the salvage company, located in Washington, which holds a contract for destruction of waste paper from federal offices in the capital.

OPA said that between August and December, 1943, it had turned over to the firm surplus stocks of ration coupons from national and district offices amounting to 23,000 pounds, for conversion into waste paper. These stocks—including coupons which were still valid for cashing and others which had expired—were fed into a shredding machine under official supervision and ostensibly torn up. Afterwards, however, they showed up in consumers' hands.

Price Administrator Chester Bowles said:

"I have asked the enforcement department to fix responsibility for this regrettable happening and to take immediate steps to see that it cannot happen again."

SCHOOL HEADS TO STUDY NEW GYM PLAN

Plans for a gymnasium and assembly hall in Boston proper, the need for which was brought out at opening of the Massachusetts Youth Committee's youth center in the Blackstone school, West End, will be discussed soon by the school committee and directors of the George Robert White Fund.

Committeeman Clement A. Norton, who proposed the conference with the White Fund directors, suggested that the structure might serve in part as a war memorial but urged that its artistic construction not overshadow the utilitarian purpose.

Army Air Bars To 11 Youths

Eleven Greater Boston soldiers, former enlisted men, have been commissioned Army Air Forces second lieutenants following graduation from officer candidate school at Miami Beach, Fla., the Army announced today.

The new officers are Donald L. Daniels, Browne st., Brookline; Joseph F. Dunn, Foster st., Brighton; Arthur S. Grossman, Putnam st., Somerville; William Hogan, Cherry st., West Newton; John M. Kilroy, Dudley st., Roxbury; Donald E. Kimball, Spruce st., Watertown; Brewer J. Meriam, Maple st., Framingham; James J. Quincy Man Battles Flames on His Plane

By FRED HAMPSON

AN ADVANCED SOUTH PACIFIC AIRBASE, Jan. 25 (AP)—A 13th AAF Liberator bomber, blazing like a torch, flew through sheets of anti-aircraft fire—yet brought all but one of her crewmen home.

A shell fragment caused an explosion amidships during the bombing run over Rabaul Saturday night.

"We all thought this was the end," said Lieut. Joseph Binder, Milwaukee, the pilot. "All I saw were flames, from my compartment back to the waist windows.

"The boys went to work (fighting the fire) but the tail gunner thought it was hopeless and bailed out over Rabaul."

Fighting the flames from the rear, Staff Sergt. Robert E. Brink, Eagles Mere, Pa., and Staff Sergt. Richard L. Hoskins, Lake Hamilton, Fla., gunners, tossed out burning metal fragments and cotton fibre with their bare hands. Although burned severely in the face, Tech. Sergt. Robert L. Taberski, radio operator, South Bend, Ind., fought the radio compartment flames with water from a thermos bottle.

There were still five bombs in the racks, covered with burning rubber and gasoline. Lieut. John Birchfield, Los Angeles, tossed them out by hand through the bomb bay doors.

Forty Jap searchlights swung toward the craft and ack-ack was concentrated on it. In the nose compartment, Bombardier Lieut. Robert W. Bjornhom, Quincy, Mass., used a fire extinguisher until it was empty, then with his bare hands threw out the burning windscreen curtain.

Binder and Lieut. Goulding Swift, Lake Charles, La., co-pilot, eluded the anti-aircraft fire by diving and twisting.

En route home, first aid was administered the burned men by Lieut. Joseph Slater, Cohoes, N. Y., extra co-pilot. Binder landed at his base with a flat tire on the nose wheel.

"If the tail gunner had stayed aboard, he'd be here to have a drink with us now," said Binder.

U. S. Casualties Reach 142,289

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25 (AP)—Latest available figures on American war casualties total 142,289, including 32,662 killed in action.

The Office of War Information announced the figures today. They cover Navy casualties through January 22 and Army losses through Dec. 31.

Navy casualties were listed as 35,572, numbering 15,520 dead, 7206 wounded, 8562 missing and 4284 captured by the enemy. (These figures include Marine Corps and Coast Guard casualties).

Army casualties to the end of December totaled 106,717, with 17,142 killed, 39,917 wounded, 24,137 missing and 25,521 prisoners of war.

TOO YOUNG HERO—With one of the most enviable records of the war, Staff Sergt. Thomas Fletcher of Columbus, O., has been released from the Army Air Forces . . . because he's only 16 years old. He engaged in 35 combat missions, acquitted himself with honor.

Tight Squeeze

Sixteen-year-old Ponciana Pena wriggled throught a 14th story window, measuring 12½ by 6½ inches, at the county jail.

7 More Vice Ring Suspects Held

Seven more youths and men allegedly linked with the interstate juvenile vice ring uncovered on Beacon Hill last week were arrested in Worcester early this morning and arraigned in district court there on morals charges.

One, a 17-year-old, George Cromb, of Beacon st., Worcester, pleaded guilty on two counts and was held in bail of 1000.

Ten persons in Worcester now have been arraigned in connection with the reportedly organized immorality clique and more are being questioned. In Boston, 13 have been arraigned two of whom pleaded guilty.

Among those who appeared today before Judge Frank L. Riley in Worcester was Richard D. Purcell, former radio announcer. He was released in bail of $1200 after pleading not guilty to three charges, one of which accused him of contributing to the delinquency of a minor.

Others who entered not guilty pleas were George Boratea, 23, of Woodland-st., bail $1000; Russell Hedlund, 29, Bowdoin st., bail $200; Frank Ball, 22, Austin st., bail $400; Leo A. Chabot, Jr., 18, Beacon st., bail $1000. All are of Worcester.

The 16-year-old boy will be arraigned at a closed court session.

Portland Fire Probed

PORTLAND, Me., Jan. 25—Investigation is underway today of a fire which started in a closet of the State Dental Laboratory and caused damage estimated at "thousands of dollars" to a three-story State st. building.

Anti-Bigotry View Of Prelates Hailed

Leaders in the fight for tolerance throughout the nation today hailed with gratitude and enthusiasm the joint statement deploring "petty bigotry" and "racial antagonism" issued by William Cardinal O'Connell and Methodist Bishop G. Bromley Oxnam, representing the Massachusetts Council of Churches, Protestant.

Motivated by recent manifestations of intolerance in this area, the statement read:

"The great law of Christian life is Christ's law of love of God and love of our neighbor. The new year summons us again to what should be our sacred duty, the fulfillment of that devine law. Like God's great mercy, Christian love is boundless; it extends to all our fellowmen.

"Inspired by this magnanimous concept, the Constitution of our beloved country protects the personal dignity and the equality before the law of every citizen. Hence, racial antagonism or lack of mutual respect of man for man offends both the precepts of the Almighty and the traditions of our beloved nation. Petty bigotry, of whatever kind, contradicts the teachings of Christ and the guarantees of the Constitution.

"It is the prayer of all men of good will that discord and intolerance, so alien both to the Gospel of Christ and to the democratic spirit of our country, may never again gain a foothold in this land. By fidelity to its own heritage of broad understanding and harmony, our country, while fully respecting the worthy traditions of other nations, shall continue to be a blessed example to all the peoples of the earth."

RADIO TALKER LEWIS FIGHTS SUIT CHARGES

Hearing resumed today in the $100,000 suit brought against Fulton Lewis, Jr., radio commentator, by Louis G. Balsam of Cambridge, who charges he lost his job as New England regional food officer of the OPA as a result of allegations contained in a Lewis broadcast.

The suit, being heard before a Federal court jury, specifically concerns a broadcast made Jan. 14, 1943, during which Lewis is alleged to have accused Balsam of trying to use his former position as dean of men at Reed College, Portland, Ore., to coerce the firm supplying food to the college to grant him wholesale prices for his own household.

Balsam said the same statements were made in a Lewis broadcast during March, 1943, and declared that as a result he was brought into public ridicule and contempt and, besides losing his OPA job, had many public speaking engagements cancelled.

Slayer Dies at Sing Sing

Takes a Firemen To Scent Fire

Malden's deputy fire chief, Louis A. Keddie, chose an appropriate moment today in which to go to the Malden City Hall to collect his pay.

As Keddie entered the building his trained nostrils detected the faint odor of smoke and he traced it to the basement. He discovered a fire, notified the fire department and sent an alarm through the four-story building to the 75 employes.

Melrose Air Cadet Dies in Plane Crash

MONROE, La., Jan. 25 (INS)—Ten men from Selman Field were killed when two navigation training planes collided and crashed, 3 miles north of here. Identified dead included Aviation Cadet Winsor Naugler, 21, of 27 Gooch st., Melrose, Mass.

Wound Shock Numbs Pain for Tregaskis

By RICHARD TREGASKIS
Boston Evening American Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK, Jan. 25 (INS)—The first shell of the barrage hit me—and when consciousness came back, and I knew I had been badly wounded, I came to realize something I had long suspected: that there was absolutely no sensation of pain.

Often I had seen badly wounded men—in Italy and in the Pacific—and it had struck me that their eyes had been filmed over by some barrier to the contortions of pain.

That barrier was shock, mercy of the wounded soldier.

Dick Tregaskis

But though all my senses were dulled I knew that I must catch up with Col. Yarborough (Lieut.-Col. William P. Yarborough of Staunton, Va.), if I wanted to get off that mountain that night.

Col. Yarborough and Capt. Frank Tomasik of New Bedford, Mass., had gone a little ahead of me, on our way back from the top of the mountain. I had stopped off for a few minutes to round up a successful day's notes. Then I got hit.

Getting a wounded man off the hard rocky slope of Mt. Corno, west of Venafro, I knew would take a crew of eight to carry me down the virtually impassable slope to the nearest jeep trail, nearly a mile away.

Since I was all alone, it did not seem likely that I would be able to find eight people to help me. The thought of self-preservation came strongly through my shock.

I stood up and began to stagger down the rocky trail.

A shell was coming. I heard the whistling of the movement and the rattling, loose explosion. I was on the ground for a little time and then I found a medical soldier wrapping my head in a bandage and saw that he had stuck my right arm with a morphine surette.

Then there were more shells following me and I found a small cave which a German had dug.

When the shells slacked off, I climbed to my feet again. Then I staggered down the rocky trail.

Around a bend of the trail I saw Col. Yarborough, bending over a bleeding enlisted man. With Col. Yarborough was Capt. Tomasik, and I felt a surge of pleasure at seeing them again.

From then on, down the long trail, Yarborough helped to support me, and the long haul might have seemed like a nightmare if I had not been shielded by the impervious barrier of shock. As it was, this was not a particularly unhappy dream.

Half an hour later we reached a peasant's house. I tried to talk, and uttered inane syllables.

Across the room I saw soldiers staring at me, the badly wounded man. They felt more pain than I did. Such is the power of shock, and the will to preservation.

GLORIFIED COTTAGE PUDDING
An old favorite with a new sauce!

Baking powder's especially important here! To taste good, this simple cake must be light and fluffy! So use reliable, cream of tartar ROYAL! For its even, "steady action" protects your baking. Helps give high, light, fine-textured cakes that keep fresh—fluffy, tender hot breads, too. When baking at home, safeguard scarce rationed ingredients. Always use ROYAL cream of tartar BAKING POWDER.

2 cups sifted cake flour	½ cup fortified margarine
2¼ teaspoons Royal Cream of Tartar Baking Powder	1 cup sugar
	1 egg, well beaten
	½ teaspoon vanilla
¼ teaspoon salt	¾ cup milk

Sift together flour, baking powder and salt. Cream margarine thoroughly; add sugar gradually, beating well. Add beaten egg and vanilla; beat until well blended. Add dry ingredients alternately with milk; mix well. Pour into greased 8-inch square pan; bake in moderate oven at 350° F. about 50 minutes. Cut into squares and serve warm with Butterscotch Nut Sauce. Serves 8. A ROYAL treat.

BUTTERSCOTCH NUT SAUCE: Mix 1 cup brown sugar with 2 tablespoons cornstarch. Add ½ cup cold water and 1 tablespoon fortified margarine. Bring to boil, stirring constantly; cook 3 minutes. Remove from heat. Add ½ cup top milk gradually, mixing in well; add ¼ cup chopped nuts.

Mary isn't enough—you're needed too!

WHEN MARY JOINED the WAC, you thought it was pretty fine. You knew she was just the type to make a good soldier.

The first time she came home in uniform, remember how proud she looked, and the lively way she talked about the places she'd been, the interesting people she'd met, and her job as an Army airplane and engine mechanic? You couldn't help feeling envious.

But there aren't enough "Marys" to do all the Army jobs which must be done. You are needed too.

If you're no good at mechanics, perhaps you know how to type, or you like to drive a car. Or you want to learn a new job—something you've never done before. Even if you've never had any kind of job, the Army can train you, and you'll fill a vital spot in whichever branch you choose to serve—the Army Ground Forces, Army Air Forces, or Army Service Forces.

Wacs do 239 different types of Army jobs. And it takes all types of women with all kinds of abilities to do them. There is important and interesting work waiting for you to do.

Don't leave it to Mary. The need is urgent. If you're between 20 and 50 years of age, without children under 14—get full details about joining the WAC today! (Women in essential war industry must have release from the U.S. Employment Service.)

BAY STATE WAR BOND SALES LAG

Bond sales of individuals during the first six days of the State Fourth War Loan drive are lagging, the War Finance committee warned today.

Individual purchases of bonds during this period were $35,700,000—considerably less than the daily average of $10,000,000 which must be maintained if the commonwealth is to achieve its quota of sales to individuals. The amount sold so far to individuals represents 13.8 per cent of the State's quota of $258,000,000.

Meanwhile, Greater Boston's drive was spurred by blood-chilling accounts of Jap cruelty in a Hongkong internment camp, related by Prof. Wenzell Brown, American instructor in a Chinese university before the war broke out.

In offering his services to F. W. Denio, state chairman of the bond drive campaign, the professor, a native of Portland, Me., recently returned here on the exchange ship Gripsholm, declared his primary thought is of the Hongkong prisoners who will not be freed until the war is won.

"Please, please, don't let us be forgotten," he quoted the camp heroine, Kate Malley, an Irish nurse, as exclaiming when he left on his exchange journey home.

Every war bond purchase will speed the day of their liberation, Prof. Brown emphasized.

Yanks in Ferocious Battle Bag 12 Zeros

By PETER HEMERY

AN ADVANCED AIR BASE IN NEW GUINEA, Jan. 23 (delayed) (INS)—When "Ken's Men" and "The Jolly Rodgers," two famous Southwest Pacific heavy bombardment outfits, ganged up on Wewak today the Japs attacked viciously instead of running out to sea.

Targets for the Liberators were anti-aircraft positions. The B-24s dropped their eggs from a high altitude right into 30-foot wide revetments, knocking out many guns and an ammunition dump.

The Liberators were set upon by 50 Jap fighters and knocked down 12.

BLOWS UP ZERO IN AIR

Capt. Leaford Bearskin of Pitcher, Okla., celebrated his last mission by shooting down two of the enemy. A full-blooded Indian, he now has 300 combat hours which means return to the United States.

"The sky seemed full of flaming planes," narrated Lieut. Kenneth Ladd of Salt Lake City, U., who downed a Zero today to bring his score to eight.

"I am sure the Nips were trying to ram us. I just pushed everything I had forward to avoid them. One I got blew up, exploding all over the sky and covering my ship with burning oil.

"After I finished at Wewak, I went downstairs and strafed Madang. I had a helluva lot of fun."

The toughest time was experienced by the bomber piloted by 2d Lieut. Vern Gaston of Casper Wyo. His B-24 was in the lead of a formation over the target when a shell burst under its nose, wounding the co-pilot and knocking out the latter's controls.

WORCESTER GUNNER THERE

"The wheel went slack in my hands," Gaston shuddered. "I just beat every lever in the office, trying to find out what was wrong, but after a hair-raising half-minute, she came back."

Gaston made a perfect landing, stopping the ship safely with no brakes and only a fraction of the flaps, which were badly shot up and wouldn't come down.

"Vern is a marvel. If anybody had told me we would land without piling up, I would not have believed them," commented Radioman Sergt. Matthew Will of Long Island, N. Y., as the lucky crew piled into the unwanted crash truck while the ground crew started to repair shrapnel holes in Two Bob Tilly.

Among other pilots whose ships scored during the raid was Lieut. Francis Haag, Jr., Pelham, N. Y. In his gun crew was Arthur Kniskern, Worcester, Mass.

Hongkong Airfield Raided by Yanks

CHUNGKING, Jan. 25 (AP)—American Mitchell bombers, some piloted by Chinese, raided the Kaitak airfield at Hongkong Sunday without loss, Gen. Stillwell's headquarters in China announced today.

(A Japanese broadcast yesterday said Hongkong had been raided by nine Liberators escorted by 15 Lightnings and three planes had been shot down.)

The communique disclosed the bombers and their escort of fighters had encountered heavy opposition, but said all planes returned safely after shooting down one Zero.

ITALY

The Germans, who on Sunday hurled the Americans back across the river, made no attempts to cross to the eastern bank.

French troops in the northernmost area beat back several more counter attacks, and a hot battle swirled for the Mt. Croce area.

British troops kept their bridgehead across the Garigliano river on the left flank of the Fifth Army line, despite new Nazi counter blows, and made some gains in the Damiano bridge area. The Germans were reported counter attacking recklessly in the Minturno and Castelforte areas.

MORE DEAD THAN IN '18

A British veteran of teh last war who went through the thick of the fighting in and around Minturno said:

"The German dead there exceeded the dead I saw at any time during the fiercest fighting on the Somme:"

The German battle groups rushing up against the invasion forces to the northwest are formations that can be drawn rapidly from any division. They represent all branches and are in the nature of miniature defense divisions with their own commanders. Presumably such groups have been drawn from several of the divisions facingthe Fifth Army.

There also were indications the Germans may bring some of their forces from northern Italy to the Rome area.

Headquarters disclosed that Gen. Sir Harold Alexander, commander of Allied forces in Italy, had personally directed the landing operations at Nettuno, and then landed himself to supervise the early oprations ashore.

(Morocco radio, quoting unverified German reports, said Littorio had been captured. This apparently referred to the town 12 miles due east of Nettuno. The German communique said Allied attacks had been repulsed in southern Italy, and that three Allied destroyers, and one merchantman had been sunk off Anzio, with three other vessels probably destroyed and 11 transports damaged.)

JVA Chief To Join Up

Joe Laura, Jr., of Saugus, commander of the "Fighting 65th" corps of the Junior Victory Army, has passed his examination for enlistment in the United States Marines and expects to don his uniform in February or March.

As a member of the air reserve he is ambitious to become a pilot but fears that his height, six feet, two inches, will disqualify him for that branch. He will probably be assigned to the engineers.

Meanwhile he is finishing high school to obtain his diploma, arranging for a substitute to take over his globe correspondence club and directing a Saugus drive for waste paper. He collected a ton himself and sold it together with 20 pounds of fats he obtained from skunks he trapped last fall.

The JVA of New England is hailed in a V-mail letter received from "Bob" Mundstedt, now in Australia and former commander of the "Hillbillies Band" Corps, made up of young musicians of the Charlestown Boys' Club. "Bob" is with a bomber group of the U. S. Army and engaged in entertainment with his stooge, Alex Smallwood. He has made several appearances aboard ship and at Australia gatherings.

To join the JVA, send your name, age and full address to Junior Victory Army, P. O. Box 228, Boston, Mass. If, in addition to enlistment you want the JVA insignia pin and membership card, enclose a 10-cent coin well wrapped in your letter.

Read the next JVA story in Wednesday's Daily Record.

British in Burma Gain 12 Miles

FOURTEENTH ARMY HEADQUARTERS, Jan 24 (delayed) (AP)—British Indian troops operating in Arakan—the most southern of the three Allied fronts in Burma—have pushed forward 12 miles in the last two months, advancing approximately a third of the way back to the positions they held before retreating last April in the monsoon rains.

British forces now are astride an irregular line between Maungdaw and Japanese-held Buthedaung.

tin st., Waltham, whose father, the late Arthur Hansen, was mayor of the city, and a colonel in the Army, until he died of a heart ailment, wants to resume school, where the Army grabbed him, and go on to college.

Staff Sergt. Wilfred B. Childs of 20 Atherton st., Devencrest—Ayer, prefers a machine job to returning as a clerk in the New York Stock Exchange, because he thinks the future is for manual skills. Pvt. Albert "Blackie" Stephenian of 144 Salem st., Reading, plots along the same line, but says: "I haven't any skill, but I like machinery. I want an apprentice's job in a lathe shop, something I can stay at."

What I mean is, these boys are thinking in post-war terms—perhaps in the dark of their bunkrooms after tattoo (lights out) is blown. There is no note of morbidity. They all expect to come back—though even as I am writing this, in the after-dark of late evening, I can hear the sharp stutter of machine guns, schooling men on yonder firing ranges, for the sanguinary test to come. They are performing distasteful work, but doing it well, in the spirit that a small boy rolls out the family ash barrels. And like small boys, some want the paternal security of their youth.

Like Joao A. Maciel of 54 Acushnet ave., New Bedford, who was born in the Portuguese Azores and means to go right back to his native Fayal, where his mother lives and his father is a fisherman.

Also Pvt. Harry Thistle of 85 Garland st., Everett, who says his pre-war hobby was going with Mildred Loyle, who wants to work with his dad, Thomas F., at the South Boston dry docks as a "bracer." A good, sound, unspoiled kid!

Then there is a group that relish the idea of going back to the identical task they left, like Staff Sergt. Jack J. Lamb (Medical Corps) of 68 Utah st., Lawrence, who used to make false teeth for J. J. McIntosh and wants to make more false teeth for the same J. J. And Pvt. Henry E. O'Donnell of 143 Cabot st., Roxbury, who is satisfied with the notion of driving again for Supreme Motors of Brighton.

WANTS PLACE OF OWN

"Independence" has become something of a mania to these long-term soldiers, some of whom have become battle-hardened in Africa and Sicily, and have no illusions about war as a manly adventure. Their present life has been ruled by schedule. They get up, drill, train, eat and sleep by the clock. They may not marry without official sanction—and a darn good rule too, for some of these lads are apt to be moved by impulse in a spasm of lonely emotion. They are held in war's rigid vise. Perhaps not as mechanically as that, for these are not the robot soldiery of the German Axis, but men with the free-hereditary right of every American to be his own peacetime manager and do as they damn legally please.

Thus Pfc. George Medeiros of 52 Briggs st., New Bedford, has been bitten by the wanderlust. He wants to go postwar places and says: "Me? I'm going back to my old job at Bethlehem Steel and get myself a money stake. Then I'm gonna light out from state to state. I've seen all of Europe. I want. I'm going to see my own country."

But the thought of further travel is nauseous to another New Bedfordite, Pvt. Ernest Benoit of 1547 Acushnet ave., who says, with down curled mouth, "I 'ell with any more moving around. I want a place of my own where I can raise a family and stay there." There is a scriptural passage to the same effect—"In the wilderness build me a nest and remain there forever at rest." So you see the prospect of peace means all things to all soldiers.

Pfc. James E. Thomas' idea is to hold and improve what he has. And he and his brother, Dana, now in Africa, hold a mortgaged six-acre cranberry bog at Carver (RFD 2), which he wants to pay off and continue raising the piquant little red globules. And he says he doesn't want to shoot bullets or guns at anything any more—"after we get through with this." That's his corner of Heaven.

All right, then! Pfc. Theodore Pescina of 126 Eugenia st., New Bedford, in division ordnance, is a pianist who plans to write musical arrangements for a swing band and has a piano "fantasy" ready for publication. He used to play with Freddy Josefek's orchestra and now deals with such cacophonic instruments of ordinance known as "the priest"—a 105mm rifle mounted on a tractor and so called by the Naz's because it has a turret on the side like a pulpit and because, as the G.Is say, "When it speaks, you listen."

Sergt. Kenneth F. Cersenault of 14 Grove st., Chelsea, now an artillery mechanic, who once drove for the Colonial Beacon Oil Co., intends to go to M. I. T. to study thermol dynamics and became a heating engineer.

And Albert J. Servant of 55 Massasoit st., Fall River, says, "I'm just going to put muh feet up high and rest. When they get ready to come down, I'll look for a construction job—but not hasty-like."

There's nothing complex about these men whose minds have been bleached by time, distance and circumstance of political partisanship, of regional jealousies, of labor bickerings and religious bigotry. They are concerned now with the basic elements of living—its bare simplicities. Their bitterness will be pretty terrible if they come back to non-existent jobs or absentee opportunities. Take heed, political America!

"I want to start a store. I don't know what I'll sell, but I want a place somewhere in town," said Staff Sergt. Austin F. Needham of 93 Sunset rd., Arlington—a bit vaguely. The old B. C. '33 man thought it pleasant to open a shop in the morning and lock up at night—and stay within its little perimeter.

And lastly, Pvt. Clarence W. Hayward, an ex-factory worker from Northbridge (no address), who has that vital element, community spirit, and wants to further his work with the Boy Scouts, of which he was a troop master. He'd like to be a teacher.

The heavier calibre guns are barking beyond the hillside as this is written—like an amplified 4th of July. Some of the men herein reported are out there in the flash-stabbed darkness, getting ready to smash the huge lock that will open the door to their future—and yours. God grant they all come home—to fulfilled dreams!

INTERVIEWED BY LAKE—The Massachusetts soldiers are among the many Austen Lake writes of today. They are (front, l. to r.) Pvt. George Medeiros, Pfc. Theodore Pescina and Pfc. Ernest Benoit, all of New Bedford, S/Sergt. Austin F. Needham of Arlington and (rear, l. to r.) Pfc. Edwin F. Lassas of Worcester, Corp. Earl W. Stacey of Fitchburg, Pfc. James E. Thomas of Carver and Pvt. Clarence W. Hayward of Northbridge.

AS ISOLATIONISTS growl that theorists are assigning billions to the rehabilitation of Europe's children while neglecting the forlorn in our own back yards, it is good to note the Medical Mission Dispensary is quietly entering into its 50th year of human salvage in the midst of Boston's most congested section.

This modest but well-equipped clinic is situated in the oldest part of America—in the shadow of the Old North Church

In an area of one square mile live some 20,000 people, most of them of foreign lineage.

The average income is low—around $15 a week—in good or bad times—and families are large.

FEE IS 50 CENTS

The primary aim of the mission is to give aid to those unable to afford a private physician. But its facilities are so excellent that many who can pay avail themselves of the medical service. No one is turned away—rich or poor—and patients come also from many other sections of Boston. There is a nominal fee of 50 cents, but those who can't pay even that find the same courtesy, the same kind care and the same medical, dental or surgical service.

Funds are provided by the Woman's Division of Christian Service, a Methodist organization.

It was first started by Theological students who believed the souls of underprivileged people could best be reached when their bodies were well.

3154 CALLS MADE

Resident physicians go to those unable to attend the clinic—last year some 3154 such calls were made. These are confined to the North End area as the doctors have no cars. But the clinic also does many other things—it administers insulin to diabetic patients; it distributes used clothing and layettes to the neediest; it places problem children in the right schools; it finds crutches, eyeglasses, and even artificial limbs for the indigent

By its very existence in Boston's most hallowed spot, which has decayed with the years, it reminds all Americans that it is a good idea to take care of the weeds in our own back yard before launching extensive new gardens in far off lands.

The Japanese Victory At Tule Lake

THE RECENT restoration of the War Relocation Authority to control of the Tule Lake camp for disloyal Japanese in Northern California, following withdrawal of United States Army units, has created a serious and dangerous situation.

It remains an open invitation to further defiance of American authority and rioting against American officials by the Japanese.

No one familiar with the defiant and contemptuous attitude of the Japanese, and of their capacity and eagerness for trouble, will be surprised if there are repetitions of the riotous events which exposed the inadequacy and incompetence of the War Relocation Authority and required intervention by the Army.

No one appreciative of the American instinct to rise to the protection of menaced homes and families will fail to understand and approve the warning given to the community of Tule Lake and the entire Klamath basin by leaders and members of the local American Legion post.

What recourse remains to the people of this American community, in view of their past experience, but to "TAKE IMMEDIATE STEPS TO PROTECT THEIR OWN LIVES AND PROPERTY WITH WHATEVER MEANS ARE AVAILABLE," as the Legion urges?

Of course Americans confronting such a situation will feel that they would be "WISE TO KEEP FIREARMS HANDY AND READY FOR USE AT A MOMENT'S NOTICE," as the Legion further advises.

WHY HAS the American Government created new opportunities for violence and riots by admittedly disloyal and dangerously antagonistic Japanese?

The War Relocation Authority hopelessly mismanaged the Tule Lake camp before the Army was compelled to take over.

It permitted itself to be intimidated by the disloyal and defiant Japanese.

It was unable to prevent the accumulation of arms and radio equipment; or the theft and destruction of Government property.

Consequently, the American attaches of the camp were endangered and were actually assaulted.

Consequently, too, the adjoining community lived in terror of the Japanese and the American people as a whole were shocked and humiliated by the shameful spectacle of an impotent and incompetent government agency frustrated and cowed by the avowed enemies of the country.

It was a show of force, and the only thing the Japanese respect is force.

BUT THE Japanese have always reasoned that any show of force by Americans is mostly bluff, and in this case they are apparently RIGHT.

They are free again to destroy government property at their pleasure, as they did before.

Bluntly, the Japanese have won a considerable victory at Tule Lake, not just a political and moral victory over the American people but an actual military victory over the American Government and Army.

The War Department should have retained control over the Tule Lake camp, and should have taken control of all the Japanese relocation centers in the United States.

In fact, the War Relocation Authority should have been abolished altogether, as measures proposed in Congress attempted to provide.

The alternative is to create unnecesary and inexcusable dangers for American communities and to compel the American residents of those communities to prepare to defend themselves "with whatever means are available."

A Word of Commendation

FROM a Concord, N. H., reader we have received the following letter:

"Editor, Boston Evening American.

"Dear sir:

"Thank you for having enough American pride and courage to publish the editorial titled 'Spare the National Anthem.' It was just what any real American would want said and I regard it as timely and very much in order.

"Traditions are sacred and the national anthem of the United States does not require any arrangement by Mr. Stravinsky or any other musical genius. Let's have no more of this sort of thing at Symphony Hall or elsewhere in this country."

Our Concord, N. H., friend is right. "The Star-Spangled Banner," which has inspired millions of Americans in peace and war, should be protected from change or alteration, even those dictated by good intentions.

Moreover, it should be played and sung much more frequently than is the present custom, for, more than anything else, it can assure our brave young sons in khaki and blue that we are preserving and safeguarding the home front for their return.

On the Side . . . . .

For him in vain the envious seasons roll
Who bears eternal summer in his soul.

—HOLMES.

THIS I quote in honor of my friend, Col. Matt Winn, who at the age of 81 has taken upon himself a new job and twice as much work as he has been doing. An attempt will be made to make billiards popular with women. I am not optimistic about the success of this campaign. For a sport to be generally successful in attracting women there must be a glamorous costume that goes with it. Any game that calls for wearing shorts has the best chance. Women didn't go much for bowling until some of the ladies donned bowling costumes featuring shorts. Same way with tennis. Since girls started wearing shorts for that game the number of feminine tennis players has tripled. Most of the newcomers are girls with beautiful legs. Take golf. Ordinarily the male golfers outnumber the female by 20 to 1. But on the Palm Springs, Cal., course and some courses in Florida where feminine golfers wear shorts there are always more women playing than men.

ALMOST CONFIDENTIAL: At a recent London wedding the bridesmaids wore red. That must have been an interesting spectacle . . . Am informed by the local butcher that one of the butchers in his shop was drafted and immediatly assigned to the Medical Corps. About eight weeks later he was in the Southwest Pacific. They seem to be getting the draftees to the front much quicker now than in the past. But don't ask me why they assigned a butcher to training with the Medical Corps . . . Have been on many trips on both the Atlantic and Pacific oceans but the two worst storms I have experienced were both off the Atlantic Coast of the United States. One outside the harbor of Portland, Me., the other off Cape Hatteras.

THAT DOG AGAIN: How can you stay angry more than five minutes with a springer spaniel? Our pup ran out and chased an automobile down the highway in opposition to strict orders. I gave him a good calling down. He hung his head and then looked up at me with those big brown eyes as much as to say: "What more can I say if I say I'm sorry?" He certainly can soften me up.

QUERIES FROM CLIENTS. Q—Here in Iceland the soldiers are arguing as to whether or not Boris Karloff played the title role in "The General Died at Dawn." How about it? A—I believe Nils Asther played that part . . . Q—Your Kentucky Derby selection Platter will not be trained for the race. Now what? A—If not Platter, it will be Pensive . . . Q—Are you still claiming Gen. Montgomery of the British Eighth Army was not born in Ireland? A—Yes, sir. Gen. Montgomery was born in London within the sound of the Bow Bells . . . Q—Bet you a half dozen stogies you can't write a four-line poem without using the letter "e." A—No bet. I think I can do it, but haven't the time right now. However, I know that Frank Vizetelly wrote an eight-line poem without using the letter "e." The first four lines of this poem are:

A jovial swain should not complain,
If any buxom fair,
Who mocks his pain and thinks it gain
To quiz his awkward air.

PLEASE NOTE: Professional football stars in England are paid a maximum of $32 a week. This despite the fact that gate receipts for some football games in England reach the equivalent of $100,000 per game. Not only that, contracts of some of these $32 (£8)-a-week football players have been sold for as high as the equivalent of $56,000. And Bill Terry, whose last baseball job paid him $40,000 a year, thinks United States baseball is a cheap business!

My Day

By Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt

NEW YORK, Monday, Jan. 24—Last spring I called to my readers' attention a list of books which the National Conference of Christians and Jews published. Mr. Archibald MacLeish has written a foreword for this list, and I think many of the titles will be of interest to thoughtful people all over the country. The Midwest area office is at 203 North Wabash ave., Chicago, 1, Ill., and I know that office will gladly distribute this list to anyone who writes in.

While I was having my hair done the other morning, I read through a little volume called "The Return," by Margaret Rhodes Peattie. There is joy and pathos in the book, but the delicate feeling for all people will be a help in understanding the changes that on that day, Victory Day, many of us will meet and will continue meeting long after it has come and gone.

I have also just seen Mr. Nathan Straus' book, "The Seven Myths of Housing." It is a clear and courageous exposition of the problems and solutions confronting us in housing as he sees them.

* * *

THERE WILL BE DIFFERENCES of opinion not only among real estate interests and private building interests, but among public housing people. Basically we know: 1—That slums exist in rural and urban areas throughout the nation; 2—That we have an expanding population, many of whom must have decent but inexpensive housing; 3—That this can only be done for our lowest income groups by cutting all the normal costs which are included necessarily in private operations.

This war, like the last, has increased bad housing in spite of emergency defense building. There will be a demand for housing at the end of the war, and the field will be open for both public and private building.

"Oh—but I'd like to talk with him, Dear. Aren't those with the stripes the ones you said were prisoners?"

Hollywood . . . . By Louella O. Parsons

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 25—No matter what anybody's opinion about Errol Flynn may be—pro or con—the boys in the Aleutians are for him 100 per cent. Errol did a marvelous job up there, and I'm not taking a press agent's word for it.

Many of the boys have written telling how much Flynn kidded himself and made them laugh when laughs are few and far between in the lonely outposts.

Ann Sheridan

Now, after all this traveling around, Warners have decided it is time to put Errol back to work again and his first—even ahead of the previously announced "Montana"—will be "Objective, Burma." The story is based on the real incident of the 60 men who were dropped behind the Jap lines in Burma, and Raoul Walsh, who just signed a new Warner ticket, directs.

★ ★ ★

ANN SHERIDAN, as gay and happy as a lark, was with the Perc Westmores at the Mocambo the other eve when I took a night out and visited both the Mocambo and Trocadero. Ann told me she starts "Doughgirls" immediately and she didn't seem in the least annoyed about this picture, so probably, it was just a rumor that she didn't want to make it. Marianne O'Brien is on the Warner lot for her original role in this stage hit. Annie plays Edna, the wise gal, who brought fame to Arleen Whelan in the stage version. James Kern has been handed the directorial assignment.

★ ★ ★

BRIAN DONLEVY'S "kiss and make up" movie with Paramount will be "Two Years Before the Mast," co-starring with Alan Ladd. Brian will play the hard-boiled skipper of the hell ship, which hands me a laugh, because if there is a more subdued guy in Hollywood now I don't know who he is! The charmer, who has done the subduing is 10-months-old Miss Judith Ann Donlevy, who has her pappy gooing and cooing, only he doesn't know it. "It's not just because she's our baby," says Brian magnanimously, "but how many kids do you know at that age who have as much personality!" I'm not going to argue. Miss D. is a beauty, and for that matter so is her Ma.

JUST IN CASE Rita Hayworth continues to refuse to return to Columbia studio there is Marguerite Chapman in the background, and of course, Janet Blair. Marguerite is being groomed, and fast, to take important parts, and don't be surprised if in this year she becomes a star. She has been assigned to the femme lead in Kay Kyser's untitled movie which Leigh Jason is directing.

SNAPSHOTS OF HOLLYWOOD COLLECTED AT RANDOM: Ketti Frings, author of "Hold Back the Dawn," is in a cast after a bad fall from her horse; Dennis Morgan has been reclassified as 3-A from the 1-A class. He has three children; Alan Curtis has been buying dinner for Sunny Skoda of the Czech munitions family; Kim Hunter, whose favorite boy friend is Capt. Bill Baldwin, out with him; Capt. Lee Langer and Orry Kelly at the Mocambo. The two boys have been overseas and soon will be off for other duties; Judy Garland and Don Roper are frequently together these evenings. Saw them with George Guinle a few nights ago; Dorothy Donegan is a sensation at the Troc. How that gal can play the piano and keep time with her feet simultaneously! She's the best entertainer since Hazel Scott and some people like her even better than Hazel; Rita Quigley is in San Francisco to visit her fiance, Lieut. Arthur Goehner of the Navy. They'll wed within the month; Robert Milton co-authored "Charm School" with Alice Duer Miller. He was also producer-director and received a lot of credit for the play at the time it was produced. That's all today. See you tomorrow!

NEW YORK, Jan. 25 — Billy Rose's plans for his first Ziegfeld Theater production, "The Seven Lively Arts," sound no more ambitious than might have been expected from The Man Who Made an Oomph Girl Out of Carmen. There's very little left for Bill Rose to outdo but Billy Rose . . . As-if-you-couldn't-guess-it item: Several men in uniform who have served in the Army with Jimmy Stewart tell me he's just as likeable and "regular" as a soldier as you'd imagine from his film personality . . . What the significance of this is I haven't decided, but a citizen who watched Howard DaSilva, "Oklahoma's" villain, Jud, move into a new apartment, reports that the first two items to enter the abode were a bassinet and a bowl of goldfish! . . . Everywhere you look you see reminders of the Fourth War Bond drive, some conservative, some rib-tickling. Backstage at "Early to Bed," a wag tacked up this suggestion: "You can help win the war better than you think if you accept War Bonds instead of mink!"

I THINK Frank Sinatra serves the radio right. I mean, as far as the studio audiences go. Anyone who's ever attended a broadcast knows how regimented the spectators become. I think most studios have discarded the old business of holding up signs reading "Silence", "Laughter" and "Applause", but even so, you applaud when you're told, you laugh when you're told and you're breathlessly quiet when you're told. But Frankie's personality manages to disorganize the studio audience to a point that no radio producer ever dreamed of in his wildest nightmares. The slur of a note, the pose of a shoulder, is enough to make his admirers shout. I know some people in the listening audience resent it, but I don't. Half the fun of a Sinatra broadcast for me is listening to the unrestrained howls. And, speaking of Frankie, as everyone is these days, what about the new Wednesday night program? But—oy!—who writes their material? It's enough to curl your loudspeaker.

Star Shine By Sidney Skolsky

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 25—Frank Sinatra, before his broadcast for vitamins takes place, comes out and makes a speech to his audience, personally. Frankie is speaking mainly to his bobby sock admirers. He tells them that this broadcast is being short-waved to the various battle fronts and the reception at best is bad and, therefore, will they please refrain from making any sounds of approval until he completes singing the song.

Frank Sinatra

Frankie has spoken to his bobby sock brigade and they listen to him. At a recent broadcast, every bobby sock gal behaved perfectly until Frankie reached his final song. Then one gal, during the song, let out with a shrill. After the broadcast, Sinatra received a note. It was from this bobby sock girl, apologizing for what she had done, saying that she couldn't contain herself any longer. But she would see to it that it didn't happen again.

ADVENTURE MOVIES, in which the hero manages to escape from the Nazis or the Japs or the Gestapo, and then finally wins over them in some manner, are being prepared at every studio. Scenario writers stay awake nights trying to "originate" new jams for the hero. Then stay awake longer trying to find engenious ways of getting the hero out of the predicament.

A master at getting the hero in unique trouble was Edgar Wallace, and Dee Lowrance told a group about Wallace and when he was hired by a London newspaper to write a mystery serial.

After he had prepared five installments in advance, Wallace thought he would take a short vacation, intending to return in time to continue the mystery.

The last installment he wrote he had the hero at the bottom of an 80-foot well. The sides were like glass. There was no rope, nothing to help him get out.

★ ★ ★

THE LAST installment appeared in the paper, and the readers and the editor were waiting for the next chapter. Wallace had overstayed his vacation and was late in returning. The editor was frantic. He needed the next installment. He put a couple of his best staff men to work on it, but they couldn't get the hero out of the well.

Finally, Edgar Wallace came into the newspaper office. "I'm sorry about being late," he said, "but I'll have the next chapter for you in time for the edition."

"How are you going to get that hero out of the well?" asked the editor frantically.

Wallace smiled, sat down at his typewriter and began to write: "Once safely out of the well, Geoffrey."

"If I keep on getting lost, I'll soon be the black sheep of the family!"

George Holland
Boston After Dark

IT TURNS OUT THAT THE MAN with the name so reminiscent of old New York, Chauncey Depew Steele, is the same Steele man many of us who were in New York in the tumultuous twenties have reason to remember well . . . But about that later . . . Currently, Chauncey Depew Steele is managing director of the Copley Plaza Hotel, and has been since September, 1941 . . . He is the fellow who brought Hildegarde here . . . And Jane Pickens, Morton Downey, Tito Guizar, Carl Brisson, Dorothy Lewis, The Hartmans, and stars of that rank . . . He made Boston a city where it is possible for the most expensive acts in show-business to contemplate playing.

CHAUNCEY — A CONTRADICTORY personality—has converted the archly conservative old Plaza into a seething hive of activity . . . He started "symphonic Sunday cocktail hours" . . . He brought in "name" bands for Saturday night hops . . . He converted the majestic old dining room into a swank night club . . . Other "go-get-'em" policies of the Copley-Plaza under the Steele regime have not been so popular . . . The auditor's forceful practice of dunning guests by telegraph, for instance, made foes and has been discontinued. (This after all is Boston) . . . But Mr. Steele has become, and definitely, a Bostonian . . . We called him a contradictory personality . . . He is flamboyantly sedate, to coin one . . . Well-groomed and suave, with an Old World dash of courtliness in his makeup, Steele nonetheless is a capable wrestler and one of the best tennis players of his age in the city.

UNTIL THIS DEPARTMENT read Frank Case's biography of his great hotel Algonquin, a tome called "Tales of a Wayward Inn," we weren't sure that the Plaza's Mr. Steele was the erstwhile owner of that fabulous luxury resort, the Briercliff Lodge in Westchester County, N. Y. . . . But he's the same one . . . Minimum accommodations at Briercliff came at $25 a day . . . Briercliff had the largest swimming pool in the world—so that Olympic tryouts could be held there . . . That was a Steele notion . . . So was the radium-activated water in a hotel spring . . . (Mme. Curie was present when the thing was activated with radium from a "mine" in New Mexico) . . . Briercliff "made" all the N. Y. papers, and the wire services, too, we recall, when Owner Steele brought trainloads of snow down from Canada because his deprived guests could not ski-jump due to an unseasonal lack of snow in New York . . . But the place blew up when the country and Mr. Steele went broke . . . He went broke to the tune of a two and quarter millions.

HIS HAS BEEN QUITE A CAREER from a Y. M. C. A. (where he first worked and lived) beginning . . . Frank Case tells a story about the now-sophisticated Mr. Steele in "Tales of a Wayward Inn" which we enjoyed, and hope you will . . . "Very soon he (Mr. Steele) became manager of the Algonquin," writes the great New York hotel-owner . . . "He was very young, very good-looking and I told him everything that I could think of about the job of manager, but I neglected to tell him that a manager must never go alone to a single room occupied by a single lady . . . (A polite invitation to come to his office is the right answer) . . . So one day when such a lady, so bestowed and in arrears, telephoned to the manager to come to her room, full of innocence and full of Y. M. C. A.. he responded."

THE LADY GREETED the insouciant Mr. Steele in her birthday suit, it seems . . . "A minute later he came rushing into my office," Author Case continues . . . "He was breathless and indignant . . . 'Why, Mr. Case', he gasped, 'I didn't know there were such women in the world' . . . "What did you say to her?" I asked. 'I said, "You just let me right out of here." . . . That was Chauncey then—at the old Algonquin.

'DECISION' FINE DRAMA

By PEGGY DOYLE

"Decision," the new Edward Chodorov play which Producer Edward Choate brought to the Wilbur Theater last night, looks to be the war play that may sidestep that war-time hex.

A war play with a home-front twist, "Decision" is stirring theater, calculated to keep you on seat's edge after the rather prosy first act. It is no blood-and-guts successor of Anderson and Stallings' great World I melodrama, "What Price Glory?" It skips the trenches and the profanities to focus attention on a kind of warfare that substitutes blackmail for block busters and pits American against American.

The locale for this 1944 version of Civil War is a typical American city, to which a homesick, wounded soldier returns for a brief furlough reunion with his fiancee, a pretty school teacher, and his father, high school principal and one of the town's most revered citizens.

His joy is as touching as it is transient. Despite their determined efforts to spare him pain during this short holiday, he learns that they are involved in a conflict that menaces the very things he and millions of other American boys are fighting for.

His father has been chosen to head a group of right-minded Americans who are fighting political gangsters who are fomenting strikes, spreading racial hatreds and seeking to foist their Fascist ideas on the honest townspeople. Their mouthpiece is a blackmailing newspaper publisher.

Playwright Chodorov, whose "Kind Lady" was and is one of our favorite marrow-chillers, has again contrived a plausible, punchy masterpiece of melodrama.

Raymond Greenleaf, who stepped into the role of the high school principal when Thomas Ross abruptly withdrew from the cast the other day, puts integrity and warmth into his playing.

Another sensitive, persuasive portrayal is Gwen Anderson's fiancee of the soldier.

'Rosalinda' Revival Scores

By MARY X. SULLIVAN

Heralded by heart-warming comment and a two-season run in New York, "Rosalinda" waltzed its way onto the stage of the Shubert last night and proved to be just as pleasant entertainment as we had expected.

A packed house, which we thought could have been more responsive, greeted the colorful production and relaxed to the lovely Johann Strauss tunes, admirably sung by principals and chorus and played feelingly under the direction of Josef Blatt.

"Rosalinda" is undoubtedly one of the best revivals we have seen here in a long time. Fortunately the producers did not try to introduce any modern notes, with the exception of a few gags which do not add anything. The ballet is beautiful, in its pink tulle skirts; the settings belong in the same era with the be-ruffled, bustled ladies who flirt their way through three acts. And we hope the censor won't object to the gay nineties strip-tease, which is well within the bounds of taste as well as Boston modesty.

Dorothy Sarnoff makes a lovely Rosalinda, and does well by the Strauss songs (which may be "schmalch" but will keep people humming and waltzing forever); Virginia MacWatters, a very cute trick, nearly steals the show as Adele, the maid who goes adventuring in her mistress' finery.

Everett West—a ringer for Doug Fairbanks, Sr., when we were very young . . . plays Alfredo with humor and a fine tenor, and Ralph Herbert contributes a good baritone and a fine performance as the philandering husband.

Other noteworthy performances were those of Paul Best, as the convivial jailer; Alexander Ivo, as the vapid Prince Orlofsky; Gene Barry, as the plotting friend of the family, and Louise Kirtland as a worldly young thing. Edward Bigelow's dancing is something to see, and he and his partner, Elsie Rieman, deserve more emphasis.

Altogether, "Rosalinda" is very nice to see and hear. The comedy is played a bit too broadly, but then it's not new. The third act was slow, and the revival could be hastened to advantage.

SPRING IN BLOOM is this splashy red print after-five gown . . . as exciting as the night-blooming cereus . . . The skirt is distinguished by a harem drape which starts at the center seam in the back . . . and continues to the front waistline . . . An Adian original, it is worn by CBS Actress Judith Evelyn . . . who accents the colorful garb with black lace-cuffed gloves . . . and wispy headdress . . . Color is fashion's highest note . . . and this gown typifies the spring trend. R. M.

Put a Curl in Those Lashes

Beauty

By RUTH MUGGLEBEE

A GIRL can dream, can't she? . . . So dream a little . . . and, care a little . . . and, it is not at all unlikely . . . your yearning for curly eyelashes . . . SO-OH long . . . may come true.

Most gals envy other gals with that cup-and-saucer glance to their orbs . . . as who wouldn't? . . . with that swishy droop of enchantment to their lids . . . like the surrey with the fringe on top . . . I know most gals do . . . if they care a whit about the power of the "glance direct" . . . yet, don't do very much to achieve it.

Most girls adopt the attitude of "leaving their eyes be" . . . if Nature hasn't endowed them with long, curly eyelashes . . . although they know full well that the eyes are one of the most important focal points of beauty.

But, in this instance . . . you "gotta" help Nature along . . . not by dreaming . . . not by yearning . . . not by being envious . . . but by definite, practical means. So let's stop day-dreaming and wishing.

SPECIAL POMADE

A certain hair specialist . . . whose undisputed prowess for concocting ointments for hair-growing atop male and female heads . . . is nothing short of wondrous . . . has created a special pomade for eyelashes . . . and, their kin . . . the brows.

It is a magnificent preparation . . . abounding with rich, pure, herbal oils . . . the kind the roots crave. If you let your eyelashes and brows feast on this honeyed nectar . . . who knows but what you may develop hedge-thick lashes . . . long and lustrous . . . and beautiful.

Use it every night before you drift off to sleep. Gently, with your fingertips . . . rub a little pomade along the eyelashes . . . see how much longer, glossier, and darker they look right away? . . . And, on the brows. Do this sincerely and regularly . . . and you, too, will discover its wonder-workings as others have found.

It is only fifty-five cents . . . truly a buy for such unquestioned high quality . . . and assured perfection of ingredients . . . There is no coal tar by-products nor vaseline in it . . . simply a compound of rich herbal oils . . . to nourish and cultivate the hair roots.

BRILLIANT EFFECT

If you're not allowed to use mascara . . . or if you prefer not to use it for the after-dark hours . . . try a little of this pomade along your eyelashes . . . for a brilliant effect. If you do use mascara . . . BE SURE to use the pomade first.

For the name of this long, lustrous eyelash-invoking preparation, phone the Beauty Dept., LIBerty 4000, except the week-end, or write me, care of the Boston Evening American, inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

IF IT'S CAPTIVATING EYES that are your dream . . . with long, lustrous eyelashes . . . to enhance the power of your glance direct . . . or the glance quickly shielded by hedge-thick lashes . . . then, make them so . . . as gorgeous film star Constance Downing has . . . in a penetrating gaze . . . which adds light and beauty to her charming face.

Wed for Money, He Longs For Sweetheart He Jilted

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX: I made the great mistake of my life by marrying for money. I am 23 years old, married three years and have no children, as I never did love my wife.

I have a good job, give her my pay check but it never seems to be enough for her. My wife says if her father didn't give her an allowance she couldn't have all the luxuries she is accustomed to and keep up with her friends.

I had been going with a very sweet girl who was brokenhearted and became ill when I married. She still goes to see my parents who love her very much, and she has never married. I should like to know if it would be wise to divorce my wife and marry my former sweetheart, as the doctor predicts I'll be a very sick man if I don't leave the woman who is my wife.

I really love this first sweetheart, and as I'm going into the service soon I want to make up with my old girl, if she will take me back. I will be looking for your answer. R. R. G.

As you're only 23, don't you think it might be well for all parties concerned, yourself included, to wait 'til the emotional effervescence in your life subsides a little before taking a second plunge into matrimony? I think such a course might be kinder to the girl you dropped in favor of marrying someone who apparently had more money.

Your letter, not all of which is given, convinces me you've not arrived at that state of constancy when one makes the wisest decisions for a life partner.

Courtesy Tip

Don't be an "umbrella demon." Watch where you and your umbrella are going. Don't brandish your umbrella about, open or closed, with no regard for the eyes and backs and shins of others.—MRS. BEECKMAN.

Eggs all Yours Now

By MARTHA LEE

CURRENT SUPPLIES of eggs are generous and are seasonally increasing. So the homemakers can again turn their talents toward fluffy egg treats that most families like so much — angel food, meringues, souffles, etc.

There are several fine points to consider in using egg whites to best advantage in cooking, and as a reminder we are giving a few today.

1—The temperature of the egg affects the whipping of the white and the separation of white from yolk. A chilly egg just out of the refrigerator separates most easily because the white is firm and the yolk less likely to break, but the white whips best after the egg has warmed up to "room temperature."

2—How long to whip is another secret the cook needs to know. Whites should be whipped stiff but not dry. If they are told their air bubbles while they are folded into a cake mixture and then cooked, they must not be stretched too thin by overbeating. Whip until the white will hold up in a soft peak and looks glossy but not so long that it looks dry. Different beaters take different lengths of time to bring eggs to the proper stiffness. Wire whips, dover beaters, or electric beaters give equally good results, but with electric beaters the speed should be moderate.

3—Both acid and salt help egg whites hold their stiffness. A pinch of salt or cream of tartar added at the start of whipping will give the foam greater volume and stability. On the other hand even a small particle of fat in the white will prevent it from beating stiff. No bits of yolk should be left in the white because yolk contains fat. The beater should be free of any traces of oil.

4—Low or moderate heat is the rule for cooking egg white dishes.

Now let us consider some recipes for using egg whites:

ANGEL FOOD CAKE

1 cup sifted cake flour
1 cup egg whites (8 or 9)
½ tsp. salt
1 tsp. cream of tartar
1¼ cups sifted sugar
¾ tsp. vanilla extract
¼ tsp. almond extract

Sift flour three times. Beat egg whites and salt. When foamy, add cream of tartar and continue beating until eggs are stiff, but not dry. Fold in sugar carefully, a small amount at a time. Fold in vanilla and almond extracts. Fold in flour, sifting a small amount at a time over mixture. Bake in ungreased 10-inch tube pan in slow oven (325 deg. F.) about one hour. Remove pan from oven and invert one hour before removing cake. Makes one large cake.

NUT MACAROON WAFERS

2 egg whites ½ cup sugar
¼ tsp. salt
½ tsp. almond extract
1 cup ground nut meats

Beat egg whites until they are stiff enough to hold their shape. Fold in sugar and salt carefully. Add almond extract and nut meats. Drop on ungreased baking sheet and bake in a moderate oven (325 deg. F.) about 15 to 20 minutes. Remove from pans at once. Makes 1½ dozen wafers.

PRUNE SOUFFLE

1 cup prune pulp
½ cup sugar ¼ tsp. salt
1 tsp. lemon juice
1 tsp. grated lemon rind
5 egg whites, stiffly beaten

To prepare prune pulp, wash and soak three-quarters pound prunes about 2 hours in water just to cover. Cover and cook in same water until very soft. Drain, remove pits from prunes and force through a sieve. Add sugar to prune pulp and stir until dissolved. Add salt, lemon juice and rind, and mix well. Fold this mixture into stiffly beaten egg whites. Pour in well-greased 2-quart double boiler, cover and cook over hot water 1 hour. Turn out on serving plate and serve with any dessert sauce. Makes 6 servings.

Tunic Coat in Full Stride

By BETTINA BEDWELL

THE tunic coat or jacket, which I have mentioned from time to time, is moving up to be one of the front line fashions for Spring.

This is going to be good news to lots of us to whom this graceful style is highly flattering. Usually tunic jackets or coats are about finger-tip length and have gracefully flaring skirts, and soft bloused upper sections.

One of these tunic coats, made by the top-flight designer, Anthony Blotta, comes in a warm red wool, and is sketched by Miss Dulin. It has loose sleeves and is collarless. It buttons down the center front on red buttons and has a trim tailored belt to make the waistline look very slim.

Martin Pattern

Pattern 9248 may be ordered only in misses' and women's sizes 14, 16, 18, 20; 30, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42. Size 16 takes 3¼ yards 35-inch, bodice-top ⅞ yard contrast. This pattern, together with a transfer pattern of decorative embroidery motifs that you can use on linens or frocks, 20 cents. Send 20 cents in coins for these patterns. Write plainly size, name, address, style number. Send 10 cents extra for new Marian Martin pattern book. Complete style selection for all ages. Free pattern printed right in book. Send order to Boston Evening American, 21, Pattern Dept., 232 West 18th st., New York, 11, N. Y.

Smart Set

Lucy Cochrane In Second Debut

By BETTY ALDEN

EVERYONE THINKS that tonight is the night Lucy Cochrane, glamorous Boston post deb, makes her debut in the Ziegfeld Follies.

But actually she made her first appearance in the show a week ago Sunday. That was after she had rehearsed privately for a week and the producer asked her to go into a performance to see what it was like behind the footlights and to have her own private dress rehearsal. "You see, it's the same Follies that opened here last spring," her mother explained, "so Lucy didn't have the advantage of rehearsing with a new cast. All the others have been playing their parts for months."

Her mother, Mrs. Dudley L. Pickman of Commonwealth ave. is too busy with volunteer war work to see the show in New York before next week-end. Lucy landed the job single-handed after she had been in Gotham but a few days.

She comes by her dramatic yearning naturally, for her mother was in musical comedy before marrying the wealthy Bostonian, the late Alexander Lynde Cochrane. And her grandmother, Mrs. Charles Wessell, though never an actress, loves anything to do with the theater and is an inveterate first-nighter.

Mrs. Pickman hasn't heard yet what costumes Lucy wears in the Follies but she hopes one is "that lovely white dress with the enormous muff and hat of scarlet feathers" that the Follies beauties wore in Boston.

"You never know what's going to happen, nowadays," she concluded. "Nancy studied and worked so hard for a career on the stage and she landed in the Army!" Nancy, Lucy's older sister, is a WAC corporal stationed at Ft. Monmouth.

COUPLES WHOSE FAVORITE pastime is salting away war bonds and dreaming of the vine-covered cottage they'll make possible in the future, will have a chance to learn many of the practical new ideas for post-war homes, furnishings and gardens at a series of lectures sponsored by the Boston Architectural Club. Talks will be given by nationally famous architects, interior decorators and landscape artists on five consecutive Thursday evenings.

A special ladies' committee, headed by Mrs. Harold Walker, meets today to discuss further plans. The committee includes Mrs. H. Daland Chandler, Mrs. Charles Collens, Mrs. Henry R. Shepley, Mrs. Gordon Allen, Mrs. T. Mott Shaw and Mrs. William Stanley Parker.

AFTER MAKING her debut at a mid-winter dance at The Country Club and having a pretty good sample of skating and skiing in New England, debutante Mary Edmands has packed her tennis shorts and bathing suits and gone to Florida for the rest of the winter. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Edmands, who have homes in Brookline, Edgartown and Allison Island, Miami Beach, where they are now residing.

Mary Jane Yeo Gains Backing of Sonja Henie

By JACK CONWAY

MARY JANE YEO, acclaimed by Sonja Henie as one of the greatest figure skating stars she has ever seen, will dazzle the big crowd that will attend the Silver Skates Derby of the American-Record at the Garden next Sunday afternoon. The talented Miss Yeo is a finished figure skater, while she rates with the best free skaters in the world.

Mary Jane Yeo

It was at Hollywood, Cal., that Sonja first saw Mary Jane. At the time the latter was giving lessons in figure skating to the daughters of moving picture stars. Sonja recognized her genius on ice, and signed her to appear in "It Happens on Ice" at Radio City, New York. After successful appearances at Radio City, Miss Yeo agreed to appear in a special ice number at the New Yorker.

The Silver Skates Derby has been the vehicle to introduce to Boston and New England many figure skaters who later went on to stardom. The list includes Hazel Franklin, star in the Ice Follies of 1944; Ariane, Erna Anderson, Meegan Taylor, Vera Hruba and Adele Inge.

Lieut.-Col. Walter Brown, president of the Garden, recently saw Mary Jane Yeo perform while in New York in connection with the Army taking over the railroads. He proclaimed her as a star of the first magnitude.

Director Ben Levias of the Silver Skates Derby made a special trip to New York to sign Mary Jane Yeo. He was amazed at the talent which she displayed in her numbers at the New Yorker.

Young Skaters Amuse

THE SILVER SKATES Derby has always been a great, big family party. The price scale of 30 cents, 44 cents and 55 cents places this show within the reach of all.

While Mary Jane Yeo and the other figure skaters, barrel jumpers and comedians will come in for their share of attention, the youthful speed skaters will furnish laughs and thrills. Many of these youngsters are good skaters, while some of them are just up from the local pond or playground without too much experience. The result is a novel affair which always creates great interest.

In the upper age groups, the skaters are better. Some of them have competed in numerous speed skating events and may be relied upon to make splendid showings.

Ice Carnivals Popular

Due to the large number of special events and speed skating contests, the show will start at 1:30 p. m. It will last for four hours and it will not have a dull moment.

THERE HAS been a steady growth in the interest in ice carnivals.

In Boston I have felt that the late George V. Brown; his son, Lieut.-Col. Walter Brown, Sonja Henie, Oscar Johnson and Roy and Eddie Shipstad, Ben Livias and the members of the Skating Club of Boston and the Commonwealth Skating Club have done much to increase interest in ice carnivals.

George Brown first brought Sonja to Boston to skate at a two-night carnival of the Skating Club of Boston. The little Norwegian girl was such an attraction that the carnival ran for an extra night, and sold out.

Later Lieut.-Col. Brown brought Sonja's show to the Garden, and also showed the Ice Follies here. He then organized the Ice Capades and gave his full support to the Silver Skates Derby.

The Skating Club of Boston and the Commonwealth Skating Club have furnished the glittering local stars who have given added color and brilliance to the Silver Skates Derby. Many of the figure skaters in these special events have been New England, eastern and national champions.

Gretchen Merrill, national champion, always took part in the ice carnivals which this newspaper conducted for its Christmas Basket Fund. Miss Merrill is a student at the University of California and is planning to defend her title in the national championships at Minneapolis in March.

An effort has been made by the Ice Follies and the Ice Capades to get Miss Merrill to skate as a professional.

Garden Basketball Seen

By MIKE GILLOOLY

Apparently convinced that basketball on a big scale, is on its way back in the city, Lieut.-Col. Walter Brown, U. S. Army, now retired from the directorship of the Boston Garden for the duration, declared that his company would welcome the sport "with open arms" after the war into Boston Garden.

Lieut.-Col. Brown made the statement, as one of the guest speakers at the annual banquet to the members of the Board of Coaches All-Scholastic football team.

Lieut.-Col. Brown stated that the Garden corporation is now in possession of duplicate plans of the layout of the Madison Square Garden floor in New York. If the fans want basketball, and possibly as an accommodation for the schoolboys, this new floor may be installed. Basketball took on new life during the past two weeks when a ruling of the school committee reinstated the sport in the Boston schools.

The president of the Garden was the first speaker at the annual Boston Evening American-Daily Record banquet. Close to 50 guests declared that it was one of the nicest affairs they had ever attended. (And the Hotel Lenox served real steaks!)

Lieut.-Col. Brown was introduced by Toastmaster Bill Grimes who proceeded, as the best-informed sports writer in the city, along his chummy lines of introductions, presenting Sports Editor Jack Conway, members of the Board of Coaches, other invited guests and principal speaker Paul Swaffield.

Swaffield, a former Brown University athlete, told innumerable, interesting tales of his experiences on the gridiron as one of the top officials in the East.

Earlier in the evening, nine members of the official All-Scholastic team were presented red, white and blue colored sweaters by Paul Moynihan of the James W. Brine sporting goods company. These gifts and gold, engraved football charms were the rewards to the boys for their stellar play during the 1943 grid campaign.

Members of the team present included Walter Sheridan, Melrose; Pete Ventola, Revere; Giles Powell, Boston English; Art Carleton, Everett; Leo Troy, Melrose; Howard Houston, Haverhill; Sal Rizzo, Waltham; James Oteri, Weymouth, and Bob O'Neil, Watertown. Mel Massucco, Arlington, now in the Merchant Marine, and George Florentine, Everett, now in the U. S. Marines, were unable to attend.

A new member of the Board of Coaches was introduced lifting the total to 10 who will pick the team next fall. The group, including new member Ed Stewart, Scituate, now lists Harry Downes, Brookline; Bill Ohrenberger, Boston English; Jim Mansfield, Haverhill; Bill Broderick, Salem; Fred Ostergren, Arlington; Ed "Skip" Sherlock, Hyde Park; Dennie Gildea, Everett; Dave Gavin, Melrose, and George Kenneally, Revere.

Other guests included friends of the All team, Giles Powell, Sr., Carroll Griffith, Watertown; Jack Leary, coach of Waltham High; George Florentine, Sr., and George O'Neil, father of the All Scholastic center.

Music was provided by Bob Hardy and a few of his boys who came up from the V Room and choral singing was enjoyed by all.

Hollett Leads Wing Invasion

By BILL GRIMES

After losing four in a row, the injury-riddled Bruins clash with the rejuvenated Detroit Red Wings, who have weathered seven games without a defeat, tonight at the Boston Garden, where a capacity crowd will gather to pay homage to their old favorite, Bill "Flash" Hollett, recently made captain of the Stanley Cup holders.

Jack Crawford, who was injured New Year's night will be back in the Bruins' lineup. After skating a few times last week, Crawford scrimmaged with the Olympics yesterday and after the session declared that he felt no ill effects.

Manager Jack Adams is in better spirits today than he has been since his Red Wings took four straight from the Bruins last spring in the finals of the Stanley Cup series.

REVAMPED WINGS

Since his last appearance here, Happy Jack has revamped his club. During the first month of the season, the Wings broke even in 12 starts but they did a nose dive during their next dozen games, winning only two and getting two draws.

With his club on the skids, Happy Jack didn't enjoy the holidays. He negotiated a trade with Art Ross which gave him "Flash" Hollett in exchange for Pat Egan. That deal helped both clubs. But, then, Happy Jack went out and helped himself to three key men, who had received their discharges from the Canadian army, Murray Armstrong, Connie Dion and Ken Kilrea.

Armstrong, who was one of Red Dutton's most promising Amerks before the war, made his debut as a Red Wing in New York Jan. 6, and it was an auspicious start for the Detroiters, with Jimmy Franks in the nets, blanked the Rangers. At three day intervals, "Flash" Hollett and Connie Dion reported to Happy Jack and the Red Wings beat the Blackhawks and tied Canadiens. That draw with the Flying Frenchmen was a moral victory, for the Red Wings had been "cousins" to the Montrealers all season, having lost all of the six games played.

HOLLETT IN MAJOR ROLE

Although the lion's share of the credit for the recent successes of the Red Wings belongs to little Connie Dion, who played here in the old Provincial League and who was the sub goalie of the Cornwall Army team last year, Murray Armstrong and "Flash" Hollett have played major roles in the comeback of the world's champions. In the seven games, he has been in the Detroit lineup, Armstrong has scored six goals and made nine assists. But, even more important, Armstrong has been responsible for Joe Carveth and Adam Brown getting into the scoring summaries far more frequently than they did before the former Amerk became their play maker.

"Flash" Hollett hasn't started a game with Detroit. Hal Jackson and Bill Quakenbush have received the nod from Happy Jack to start games since the last time the Wings played here. But, "The Flash" sees plenty of service and has scored three goals, the most important of which was the one which gave Detroit a tie with Les Canadiens, and made two assists, for a total of 21 points for the season.

Due to the return of Jack Crawford, Guy Labrie, who did an excellant job as a filler-inner, has been returned to the Olympics, but Russ Kopak, Al Rittinger, Al Palazzari and Tommy Brennan are still with the varsity.

Louis Here to Referee

By JACK CONWAY

Sergt. Joe Louis, looking as physically fit as the night in New York when he knocked out Billy Conn in 13 rounds, arrived in Boston this morning to referee a title wrestling bout between The Terror and Jack Clayburne, heavyweight, at the Arena tomorrow night.

Louis refereed in Baltimore last night and immediately after the contest took a train to Boston.

Louis was met by Paul Bowser at South Station. The party had breakfast, after which Louis rested until he went to the State House to meet Gov. Saltonstall. Lieut.-Col. Sam Smith of the Boxing Commission and Paul Bowser accompanied Louis to the State House.

The champion was listed to attend the Shriners' luncheon and to meet the press at the Garden Club.

Asked if he had any plans, Louis said:

"When the war ends I am looking forward to meeting Billy Conn in a return bout. It is still a $1,000,000 attraction and I hope it will be when the war ends. You see, I owe Uncle Sam $117,000 in income taxes and I'll need a good slice of money to pay them.

"I know that I have lost some of my speed and timing in the Army The routine, while it builds up physically does not improve one as a boxer. Conn, however, also is in the Army. It will, therefore, be all even as far as condition is concerned when we meet."

New Nickname Phillies Seek

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 25 (AP)—The Phillies have decided there isn't enough identification for a baseball team in a name alone and are now planning to offer a $100 war bond prize to the fan who selects the best insignia for the team.

It may be fish, bird, animal or something from Philadelphia's rich tradition, but it must be synonomus with the city, the club's youthful president, Bob Carpenter said.

"I want an emblem or insignia that is strictly Philadelphia, one that the baseball world will know and respect."

Dartmouth Beats B. C. To Notre Dame Game

By HUCK FINNEGAN

Boston didn't see a football game of "big league" proportions last fall, but that isn't likely to happen again. For there was New York Bill Shea in town this afternoon whooping things up for Ted Collins' new pro club which plans to operate here in the fall, and there was up-and-coming Dartmouth plunging goalward with the prize package of the century: a game with Frank Leahy's Notre Dame legions, scheduled for Fenway Park, no less, on Oct. 14 (return game at South Bend Oct. 13, 1945).

Frank Leahy

And do not be surprised if Dartmouth and Holy Cross stage their '44 classic in Fenway Park. Fitton Field was all too small for the gathering that watched the 3-0 game in '43. Dartmouth is stepping out—perhaps out of the Ivy League.

The Notre Dame series was a masterpiece of scheduling for the Green. Boston College, which had priority rights on Fenway Park and which seemed in line for a Notre Dame game, can't put its hands up in self-defense. Its Army trainees are forbidden to play football, and its civilian undergrads aren't able to cope with the Marines and V-12's who disport for both Dartmouth and Notre Dame. B. C. must wait until the post-war period to fight back at the Hanoverians.

Freshmen Return

None of these gridiron immortals will be in action next fall, of course, nor will the mainstays of the 1943 elevens—Don Kasprzak, Bob Mangene, Joe Andrejco, John Monahan, Art Vorys, for Dartmouth; John Yonakor, Angelo Bertelli, Johnny Lujack, Jim White, for Notre Dame.

No, they'll all be gone. Only freshmen like Billy West and Hal Clayton of Dartmouth, 4-F's like Boley Danciewicz and Creighton Miller of Notre Dame will be back. But there'll be a bevy of new talent in the Marine and Navy ranks, and both Leahy and Brown will start practice early enough to have the teams at their peak by Oct. 14.

"What if Brown (28) and Leahy (35) are drafted?" asks Timmy "Numbers," the office gloom. Little chance. Aren't they training Marines and naval V-12's? That would seem to call for occupational deferment.

Al Dickensheid and Jerry Wallace, B. C. boys who entered Notre Dame's midshipman school last October, are home on furlough before moving on to the Newport, Va., training base. Dickensheid played varsity baseball last spring, looked like an all-Eastern back in football practice but was shipped to Notre Dame before B. C. opened its four-game schedule . . . Herb McKenley and Ralph King are ripping off sparkling quarters as Jack Ryder tones his one-mile relay for the Feb. 5 Millrose meet. Other members of the team are John O'Neill of Arlington and Joe McDavitt of Cambridge Latin . . . McDavitt was strictly a high jumper before entering B. C. but Ryder has him flirting with 53 seconds at this early date.

Yale Hockey Coach In War Fund Game

NEW HAVEN, Ct., Jan. 25 (AP)—Murray Murdock, Yale University hockey coach, said that he had been invited to play in a war loan benefit game Sunday afternoon at Madison Square Garden between the New York Ranger sextet of 1926 and the original New York Crescents of that same era.

Two Cities Honor Harmon

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Jan. 25 (AP)—The elated family of Lieut. Tom Harmon, former University of Michigan All-America football player, today planned a two-city celebration of the fighter pilot's return home from a fighter air base in China.

His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Harmon, were en route to Gary, Ind., to await his arrival there. Harmon, who survived two airplane crashes within a year—one in the Brazilian jungles and the other in China—was expected in Gary tomorrow to visit his sisters, Mrs. Bertram Jensen and Mrs. Mary Considine.

"We're so thrilled Tommy is back," Mrs. Harmon said, "that we're going to Gary to wait for him there."

Harmon, who described during a press conference at Washington the air battle last Oct. 30 in which his fighter plane was shot down in China, will accompany his family to Ann Arbor Friday or Saturday. It will be the first time in more than a year the former gridiron star has been home.

After blasting two Japanese Zeroes out of the sky in a furious dogfight over the Kiukiang docks and warehouses, Harmon's plane was shot down, and he parachuted into a lake. With the aid of Chinese guerrillas, he made his way back to the American lines 32 days later.

The pilot bailed out of his bomber last spring while on a flight over the South American jungles and wandered through jungles for six days before he was found by natives.
